Dismissal of the complaint by Justice Hanby is not necessarily final, attorneys said, as the law provides even after hearing in a justice court, the prosecutor may, if elected, go before the county grand jury and ask indictment. ### SHAFT SINKING AGAIN STARTED CAMP TAYLOR

Boarding House Will be Opened on Wednesday and Twelve Men Are at Work.

Things are beginning to hum at Camp Taylor, new silver-gold district situated five miles south of Golden Arrow. Yesterday a truck load of supplies was sent to the seat of operations, and the boarding house will be open and ready for business on Wednesday.

Shaft sinking was resumed today, and by the end of this week a crew of 12 men will be at work in the development of the property which makes such a fine showing from near surface development. As the shaft attains depth the ore vein is growing in size and richness, and there is every reason to believe that it will be found to be persistent to great depth.

Mining men who have examined this property give it as their unqualified opinion that Camp Taylor is to become one of the real live mining districts of southern Nevada. The geological formation is almost identical with that of Tonopah and the ore occurs between walls of andesite and rhyolite.

There is a great deal of activity throughout the new district, and owners of property are prosecuting development with a view of completing their assessment work within the required period. The two groups of claims taken over from James Shea, Briz Putman, Ambrose Murphy and Lloyd Mount, by G. B. Thatcher, J. G. Crumley and others, are to receive attention immediately. The Storm Cloud is now controlled by George Wingfield and J. G. Crumley, and the fact that such extensive development has been inaugurated in so short a time speaks volumes for the work that is to be carried forward in the proving up of the district.
